

ARREST MOTORIST WHOSE CAR STRUCK NEW BRITAIN BOY

Samuel Lawrence, Owner of Lawrence Greater Shows,
Released Under Bail

APPREHENDED IN N. J.

Driver of Car Striking Raymond Barber Says He Hit Embankment

EDISON, May 28—Samuel Lawrence, 52, of Chester, S. C., owner of the Lawrence Greater Shows, Inc., who was arrested in Woodbridge, N. J., yesterday afternoon at a hearing here yesterday afternoon that his car was the one which struck and seriously injured Raymond Barber, 11, of New Britain, Sunday afternoon.

The teletype and the press enabled police to track down the alleged hit-run motorist, whose car is said to have struck the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Barber, New Britain, the metal direction sign on the front of the large sedan penetrating the boy's hand and being forced up into his arm several inches. The lad, hurled 30 feet by the impact, as he was pushing his bicycle along the highway near his home, made his way home although in a state of severe shock.

A New Britain girl, who read an account of the accident in the newspapers, informed police that she had heard an impact while walking along the highway near the scene, and that she saw a man get out of the car, shake his head, return to the car and continue on his way. The girl stated she did not see the Barber boy who had been hurled into the field by the impact, thus she did not realize anyone had been struck. Police found green paint on Barber's bicycle.

From these facts, and from the direction light which was removed from the boy's arm at Abington Hospital, also teletype message to police bureau along the eastern seaboard, information on the owner's whereabouts was secured.

Lawrence told officers he was driving alone toward Doylestown on Sunday afternoon. He states he remembers striking an embankment on the side of the highway; but added he did not see a boy nor a bicycle. He also told officers he had not been drinking, was not asleep and was not ill. He added that he continued about 200 feet, got out of his car, and I looked back, but saw nothing. He did notice, however, red paint on the bumper of his car, and noticed that the fender was damaged and his direction light missing. He told that he did not investigate further. "I then pulled to the side of the highway and took a nap," he added, "then continued on to New Jersey."

Arrested on a charge of aggravated assault and battery, and as a "hit-run" motorist, Lawrence was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Wigley here, yesterday afternoon. He was released under $1500 bail, for a further hearing on June 4th. His car was taken to Doylestown and photographed.

HATBORO COACH KILLED BY A DISCUS THROWN BY STUDENT OF DOYLESTOWN HIGH SCHOOL

HATBORO, May 28—(INS)—James Herbert Beidler, Jr., 27, Hatboro High School track coach was dead today after being struck below the ear by a four-pound discus at a track meet with Doylestown High.

Despite first aid by telephone linemen working nearby, Beidler died almost instantly when the metal rimmed wooden disk was hurled in practice by George Flack, 18, of Doylestown High. Beidler had been arranging the lineup with Robert Lynn, 28, Doylestown

NAMED COMMANDER FOR THE PHILA. AREA

Col. J. H. M. Andrews Will Have Charge of Civilian
Defense in Bucks County

TO BE CO-ORDINATOR

PHILADELPHIA, May 28—Colonel J. H. M. Andrews, PTC vice-president in charge of engineering, has been chosen control center commander of the metropolitan Philadelphia defense district.

Andrews will co-ordinate civilian defense protection services in Philadelphia, Bucks, Chester, Delaware and Montgomery counties, each of which has, or is in process of appointing, its own commander.

Although technically in authority over the county commanders, Andrews' job will be principally one of co-ordination, with each county commander retaining authority in his own community. The protection services are directed from control centers, with the site of the metropolitan headquarters still to be selected.

Announcement of Andrews' appointment was made by Dr. A. C. Marts, State civilian defense director, at a Rotary Club luncheon in the Bellevue-Stratford. Dr. Marts added the district council has allocated $5,000 for the expenses of Andrews' office for the remainder of the year. The services of the colonel himself have been lent full-time by PTC.

Dr. Marts told the Rotarians New Jersey has declined to join the metropolitan defense council. After his address he added that New Jersey "seems to have an attitude" that by joining it would surrender some of its rights.

Miss Panek is Guest of Honor at Surprise Shower

Miss Lottie Panek, Farragut avenue, was the guest of honor at a surprise miscellaneous shower given Tuesday evening by her attendant-to-be, Miss Lois Hannon, Farragut avenue. The affair was held at the home of Miss Hannon. The gifts were arranged in a basket which was trimmed in pink and white, and were presented to Miss Panek as she entered the living room. For games prizes were given. Refreshments were served. A large umbrella decorated in pink and white, was suspended from the lighting fixture, and streamers extended to each place. The centerpiece was a bouquet of cut flowers. Favors were small watering cans in pink and white.

The invitation list included: Mrs. George Slicht, Mrs. Joseph Sokol, Mrs. Andrew Moore, Mrs. O. Chuma, Mrs. M. Petrlik, Mrs. E. Bleakney, Mrs. A. Konefal, Mrs. A. Vaskivich, Mrs. A. Paulaworth, Mrs. Raymond Kleczynski, Mrs. Milton Miller, Mrs. D. Smith, Mrs. Benjamin Kontoff, Mrs. M. Panek, Mrs. John Fraser, Misses Agnes Verostek, Evelyn Streepfer, Eleanor Petrlik, Rita Scharg, Janet Brace, Loretta Headley, Katharine Kryven, Bristol; Mrs. R. Lyczak, Riverside, N. J.; Miss Naito Mento, Burlington, N. J.; Mrs. Benjamin Wilinski, Delanco, N. J.

Industrial Arts Department To Have Annual Exhibit

The annual exhibit of the industrial arts department of Bristol High School will take place this evening in the Bristol high school shop.

The exhibition of wood and metal work will be opened to the public at 7:30 o'clock. This will give those attending class night exercises an opportunity to view the pieces before or after the program.

Lester Michael, shop instructor, is in charge.

EMILIE ELEVATED

Oscar A. Booz was elevated to the rank of lieutenant in the Air Force, U. S. Army, when graduation exercises were held at the Air Corps Technical School, Lowry Field, Colorado, on Saturday.

COVERED DISH SUPPER

ANDALUSIA, May 28—A covered dish supper will be conducted this evening at six o'clock by St. Agnes Guild of the Church of the Redeemer.

P. F. C. William L. Risser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Risser, Wilson avenue, has been promoted to rank of corporal in the engineers division, and is now stationed at Camp Claiborne, La.

coach, when the discus struck Lynn in the face and rebounded edgewise, hitting Beidler.

The discus struck Lynn first—the flat side hitting him a glancing blow on the face—and then struck Beidler below the ear with the sharp edge breaking his spine just below the skull.

Beidler fell into the arms of Forrest Somers, a member of the Doylestown teaching staff and assistant basketball coach at that school.

Two Bell Telephone linemen working nearby administered first aid until the ambulance arrived.

Beidler's brother, Joseph, 16, a member of the Hatboro team, collapsed when he learned of the instructor's death.

More than 100 students had gathered at the field to watch the track contest between the two schools. The meet was cancelled after the accident.

Beidler came to Hatboro as a science teacher after teaching at New Hope, Bucks county. He had been graduated from Hatboro High School in 1934 and later had attended Bucknell University. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Beidler, and his wife.

Former Resident Here Dies in Trenton

TRENTON, N. J., May 28—Services for Oliver J. Van Doren, 67, husband of Mattie M. Van Doren, who died yesterday following a lengthy illness at his home, 1069 South Broad street, where he conducted a grinding and machine shop, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Poulson & Van Hise Home for Services, 408 Bellevue avenue.

Dr. John McNab, pastor of Third Presbyterian Church, will be in charge, and interment will be in Riverview Cemetery. Friends may call this evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Surviving, in addition to his wife, are two sons, Addison and Norman Van Doren; two daughters, the Misses Betty and Barbara Van Doren; a granddaughter, Miss Claire Van Doren, Trenton, N. J., and a sister, Mrs. Elmer Harvison, of Bristol. Mr. Van Doren held membership in Washington Camp, No. 789, P. O. S. of A., Bristol.

2 BRISTOL MEN ARE IN MECHANIZED CAVALRY

Joseph Dorsey, Jr., and Joseph DiLissio Have Motorcycles
As Their "Steeds"

COMPLETE MANEUVERS

Two Bristol men, who are serving in the U. S. Army, are members of the 104th Mechanized Cavalry, their modern "steeds" being motorcycles.

They are PFC Joseph Dorsey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dorsey, 346 Dorrance street; and Private Joseph DiLissio, son of Mrs. Anna DiLissio, Brook street.

Dorsey, who had for a number of years ridden a motorcycle, following induction into the army 15 months ago, was assigned as an instructor at Fort Riley, Kansas. During his three months' stay there he was an acting corporal. Last June he was sent to Indiantown Gap, where at present he is on guard duty.

DiLissio, who was also at Indiantown Gap for a time, is located for a time at Convention Hall, Philadelphia. He, too, has been in the service for 15 months.

Early this spring the two travelled to North Carolina on their motorcycles, together with other cyclists.

Predict War Production Peak This Fall

London—Predicting that the peak of all American war production will be reached this fall, Lieut. Gen. Breton B. Somervell, commanding general of the American Services of Supply, today told of the full co-operation between United States and British forces but refused to discuss offensive plans for the future.

"I am here to arrange supply requirements both for the United States and British armies," he said in a press interview.

"Shipping is a big problem.

"I am here to arrange mutual co-operation in the requirements of the troops.

"Both armies are using what material is here and what we can bring over from the United States to the best advantage with economy of shipping, as transport is our biggest problem."

Gen. Somervell refused to state just what particular operation is under way, but said: "We have made vast steps in standardizing equipment, particularly small arms. We find the British Army using American equipment and vice versa.

Deny "Labor Pirating" Practice

Los Angeles—Charges made by the War Manpower Commission in Washington that "labor pirating" is practiced in war production plants were denied today by Donald Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Company, who said that Pacific coast war factories have a clean slate.

"There is no labor pirating of one aircraft company from another in this area, or along the Pacific coast," the aircraft official declared. "Wages were equalized last September by the Office of Production Management ... which placed all plants on the same basis, for equal work."

Quintuplets Get Hair-Cuts

Callander, Ont.—The Donne quintuplets celebrated their eighth birthday today by getting a haircut—their first.

Anything else that happened seemed unimportant by comparison with this epochal event for all five of the world's best-known little women had hair tumbling over their shoulders to well below their waists.

Mamma Dionne, a little sad-eyed, first applied the scissors as the quintuplets shivered with excitement, and Clara Ogilvie, New York hair stylist, finished the job.

INDUSTRIES PLAN TO HAVE FLOATS IN PARADE

Several Have Notified Committee of Their Intention To Have Exhibits

COMMITTEE IS ACTIVE

A number of industries of this area are planning to enter elaborate floats in the July 4th parade which is to be held here. On these floats it is planned to show the industrial war effort of this locality.

The industrial division is planned along educational lines and is being developed with the idea of exhibiting to the people the important part which local industry is playing in this all-out war effort.

A number of the major industries of this locality have already informed the committee that they will have exhibits in line and in a general way have indicated what these exhibits will be.

Elmer V. Vansant, superintendent of the Badenhansen Corporation, Cornwells Heights, is chairman of the Industrial Floats committee, which is a sub-committee of the General Committee handling the details of the parade and the pageant which is to follow.

Other members on the committee are: L. C. Vandegrift and Franklin Wallin.

Wm. S. Roberts Receives Bachelor of Science Degree

Among the 91 students receiving degrees from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science at its 120th annual commencement last evening was William Stoddart Roberts, Jefferson avenue. Roberts majored in bacteriology, and received the degree of bachelor of science.

Commencement week at the college was inaugurated on Sunday, with a baccalaureate service held at the Walnut Street Presbyterian Church. On Monday the trustees and faculty tendered a dinner to the graduating classes; while on Tuesday the Alumni Association held its annual reunion and business meeting. The commencement exercises were featured by an address by Dr. Hubley R. Owen, director of health, and chairman of the Council of Defense of the City of Philadelphia.

Anthony D'Amico, class president, will call the meeting to order; after which Gerson Miller, representing a scientist, "inventor of a futuristic pill," will take over. The class members will then be depicted 20 years from now.

Other members will include: Medley of songs, class; class poem, Marion Serchak; "Just College," with participants including Margaret Brownlee, Doris Pearson, June McLaughlin, Winnie Kelly, Betty Brown, Philip Mannerz, Albert Dowden, Robert Monti; class orator, Leslie Wallace; class will, Arthur Massi; class song, group; presentations, Malinda Brown, Nita Navetta, Rosemary Riley.

Awards will likewise be presented on this occasion.

Strip Bristol Man's Car Of 3 Tires; Steal Gas

A Bristol man, whose car was stolen a month ago from South Broad street, Trenton, N. J., has been notified that the car is recovered—but minus three practically new tires, the gasoline, keys and license plates.

The loser is Benjamin Praul, Lafayette street.

The sedan was recovered by a patrolman on a farm in Lawrence Township, N. J. The three good tires were stolen; the one left on the wheel and the spare not being in as good condition as the trio which was practically new.

Entrance had been gained to the car by forcing one of the ventilating windows, it is said.

James Laughlin Undergoes Serious Operation, Tuesday

CROYDON, May 28—Justice of the peace James Laughlin, who underwent a serious operation early Tuesday morning in Abington Hospital, is improving nicely, it is stated.

Mr. Laughlin, who was in the operating room for four hours, appeared in excellent spirits last evening states Mrs. Laughlin.

A blood transfusion was administered yesterday.

CLUB GETS CHARTER

The Women's Democratic Club of Croydon was presented with its Charter, and is now a member of the Pennsylvania Federation of Democratic Women. Miss S. Cecelia Dougherty, Regional director of District No. 1, presented the document to the club, with a few well-chosen words, and it in turn was received by the Club's present president, Mrs. J. Walter Parish. It was then voted to have it framed and hung in the Club room. Delegates were chosen to attend the convention which will be held in York on June 3-4-5. Those attending will be the president, Mrs. Rose E. Parish, Mrs. Gertrude Beears as delegate, and Mrs. Esther Mossbrook as alternate. Refreshments were served, and Miss Dougherty returned to her home in Downingtown.

Darrah Convicted

FINES AND JAIL TERMS

John Johnson Fined $600 or Six Months in Jail

DOYLESTOWN, May 28—Sentence was imposed on three colored residents of Bristol yesterday, they being hauled into court here on charges of liquor law violations.

Mrs. Addie Johnson, Market street, was given a suspended sentence on condition that she pay the costs of prosecution, amounting to about $30, by Monday. Her husband, John Johnson, 43, was convicted on two charges, he being sentenced to pay a fine of $600 or serve six months in the county prison.

Roselle Darrah, 55, uncle of Mrs. Johnson, also convicted on two charges, was fined $200 or must serve not less than two months in the county prison.

Johnson, it was pointed out, had been in court during the prohibition period on similar charges; and Darrah, it was stated, had been in court in 1940 in connection with charges of relief "chiseling."

Judge Calvin S. Boyer heard the case. The trio from Bristol is alleged

To Sell Stamps and Bonds At Two Theatres Here

The managers of the two Bristol theatres, Edward Lynn, of the Grand and Ned Egan, of the Bristol, will cooperate in a drive to sell War Savings Bonds and Stamps.

Memorial Day, a day set aside to honor those who paid the supreme sacrifice in the Civil War and later those who lost their lives in other wars, is the date on which the drive will start.

Fifteen thousand theatres throughout the United States will launch on Memorial Day a great campaign to sell Bonds and Stamps to the 80,000,000 movie goers of America. Both Stamps and Bonds will be on sale at both of the Bristol theaters day and night, including Sundays and holidays. When other places of business are closed the public will be able to buy both Bonds and Stamps at the theaters.

Under auspices of the war activities committee of the motion picture industry all theatres in the country are becoming stamp and bond agencies. Volunteers from patriotic women's organizations are requested to preside at lobby tables to be placed in the theatres to sell to the moviegoers.

The drive will continue for the duration. It is hoped that the vast mass of moviegoers will become the nation's most active buyers of stamps and bonds.

Both local managements request the general public to avail themselves of this opportunity to secure the Bonds and Stamps, as often as possible in order that Bristol will show a favorable patriotic and saving picture to the rest of the country in this time of stress, through which our nation is now passing. It is hoped that Bristol will measure up to the expectations of our government call.

In some of the large cities the drive by the theatres is heralded by parades and mass meetings but Mr. Lynn and Mr. Egan felt that through the co-operation of The Courier each and every person could be informed of the opening of the drive in this locality.

TO SPEAK TO P. T. A.

James Patterson, of Croydon, will speak to members of the Laurel Bend Parent-Teacher Association this evening in the school house. The hour is eight o'clock. Mr. Patterson will speak on first aid. After the meeting a "dog-eat-dog" roast will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vetter, Bath Addition.

THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1942
FRANCE AS BATTLEFIELD
Arrival of additional American forces in Ireland and constant reference by Washington and London to the imminence of war on a new front in Europe gives new significance to growing speculation concerning the locale of the Allied invasion when it comes.

Growing hostility of Vichy to Britain and the United States reflects Hitler strategy. Hitler's recent moves to get a stronger grip on France is open to only one interpretation. He believes that his position in France is weak and that shortly he will be compelled to face attack at some point along the French coast, which the British air force has been pounding with relentless fury.

It is in anticipation of this attack that his stooge, Laval, has been working himself up into a rage against the Allies. Laval knows that when the Allied drive for Berlin starts, his life will be worth about as much as a plugged nickel.

But has the installation of Laval given Hitler new strength in France? There is substance for the theory, which gains strength rapidly, that he could not possibly have made a move designed more effectively to unite the French people in firm resistance to German subjugation. Laval is almost universally regarded with distrust and contempt and it is believed that a leader so intensely hated can succeed only in stiffening the spirit of French resistance to German rule.

Would the French people fall into line behind Laval in the event of a break between Vichy and the United States? It is doubtful. France may be the decisive battleground of this war, as it was in 1918. It is here, judging by the spirit of the French people, which surges high in spite of oppression, threats, Laval and the shooting of hostages, that Hitler is weakest.

NATION-WIDE GAS RATIONING
Strong and reiterated intimations by Washington that gasoline rationing will be placed on a nation-wide basis before the end of the summer—perhaps by July 1—is discouraging news for sections of the country that have no motor fuel transportation problems. The disruption in the lives of the people and the catastrophic effect upon many lines of business resulting from gasoline rationing in the East will become general if the rationing area is extended.

Gasoline rationing, if applied nationally, will be motivated by a desire to save tires, according to Washington stories of plans being made by the rationers. This comes as an especially hard jolt to motorists in areas where gasoline is as plentiful as water, motorists who had been told months ago by Jesse Jones and other officials that there was plenty of rubber for immediate needs, and by other stories of the imminence of large-scale production of synthetic rubber.

Synthetic rubber, it would appear from plans for national gasoline rationing to save tires, is a mirage from which the nation may expect little if anything for years. Hardest hit, of course, in this national gasoline rationing plan, if it is put into effect, will be thrifty motorists who equipped their vehicles with adequate tires before the present shortage developed. They will not be allowed to reap any benefit from their foresight.

Rationing of shoes by the end of the year is predicted as a possibility, but what isn't?

SYNOPSIS

A chance meeting between two strangers aboard an English railway train on Armistice Day, 1937, reveals an extraordinary lost memory mystery. One of the two is Charles Rainier, member of Parliament and steel millionaire. He remembers nothing from the time of a shell-shock near Arras early in 1917 until almost three years later when he recovered his own identity on a park bench in Liverpool. The other man, named Harrison, is relating the story. In 1938, Harrison was hired to succeed a Miss Hobbs as Rainier's secretary. Miss Hobbs idolizes Rainier but does not like his wife who is famed for her "celebrity parties." Harrison consulted Dr. Freeman, a noted psychologist, who was acquainted with Rainier's case but is baffled by it. The doctor does remark that Mrs. Rainier once was her husband's secretary, a detail that Miss Hobbs had not disclosed. The mind specialist leaves Harrison with the impression that he suspects Mrs. Rainier, Miss Hobbs, and Sheldon, the veteran butler, are "hiding something." A few weeks later, Rainier and Harrison motor to Stourton. At dinner, Mrs. Rainier was particularly gracious to Woburn, suggesting that he might write a biography of her husband's father. Later that evening, Woburn told Harrison that he was working in a nearby public library when Rainier hired him at the instance of Mrs. Rainier. Woburn had written a fiction story concerning the tragic return of a Russian soldier who had lost his memory. Rainier was quite interested by that, said Woburn, who then eulogized Mrs. Rainier, mentioning her remarkable memory...

CHAPTER ELEVEN

We returned Sheldon's salutation; then, as soon as the door closed, looked at each other rather uneasily. "I didn't hear him come in," said Woburn, after a pause. "He didn't knock."

"Good servants don't—except at bedroom doors."

"Oh? I don't know things like that. My mother never had a servant."

"Now who's being an inverted snob? My mother had one servant, whom we called the skivvy. That sets us both pretty equal as far as Stourton's concerned."

"You probably went to a good school, though."

I mentioned the name of my school and agreed that it was generally considered fairly good. "As good as Netherthorpe, which is where Rainier went. Anyhow, from a social angle, the main thing is the accent—which you and I both seem to have. Nobody's going to ask us where we picked it up."

"I don't mind if they do. I was at a board school up to the age of twelve—then I won a scholarship to a suburban grammar school. I took a London degree last year, working in the evenings. I never try to conceal the truth."

"Conceal it? I should think you'd boast about it!"

"I suppose that's really what I am doing. Will you have a drink?"

"Yes, please."

He began to mix them and presently, while working off a certain embarrassment, added: "How does that fellow Sheldon strike you?"

"I said I thought he was the kind of person one could avoid a decision about by calling him a character. 'Maybe the keeper of the family skeleton,' I added."

"No—because if there were one, Rainier would take a perverse delight in dragging it out of the cupboard for everyone to stare at."

We laughed and agreed that that might well be so.

It was past eleven before we yawned our way upstairs. When I reached my room I found it full of cool air and moonlight; in the vagrant play of moving curtain shadows I did not at first see Rainier sitting by the window in an armchair. He spoke as I approached: "Don't let me scare you—I'm only admiring your view. It's exactly the same as mine, so that isn't much of an excuse. . . . How did you and Woburn get along?"

"Quite well. I like him. An intelligent young fellow."

"Spoken with all the superiority of thirty to twenty?"

"No, I don't think so. I do like him, anyhow."

"He's my wife's protégé. She wants to see him get on in the world—made me root him out of a municipal library to do this card-indexing job. . . . Yes, he might go far, as they say, if there's anywhere far to go these days."

"That's the trouble, and he probably realizes it as much as we do." "Well, we can't change the world for him, but it's nice to have him around—company for Helen, if nothing else. I like him too, for that matter. I like most boys of his age—and of your age. Wish I had an army of 'em."

"What would you do with an army of them?"

"Something better, I hope, than have them catalogue books or write biographies of my ancestors." He read my thoughts and to continue: "I daresay you're rather surprised at my lack of enthusiasm for the family tree. That may be because I didn't have a very satisfactory home life. When I was a small boy my father was just something distant and booming and Olympian—a bit of a bully in the house, or at least a bit of a Bulldozer (if you remember your Vice-Verses)—all of which made it fortunate for the family that he wasn't much in the home at all. My mother died when I was ten."

"But you liked her?"

"I loved her very dearly. She was a delicate, soft-voiced, kind-hearted, sunny-minded, but rather helpless woman—but then most women would have been helpless against my father. He loved her, I've no doubt, in his own possessive way. Perhaps a less loving and more thoughtful husband would have sent her to a warmer climate during the winters, but my father wasn't thoughtful—at best his thoughtlessness became comradely, as when he insisted on taking her for brisk walks over the hills on January days. It was a cherished saying of his that fresh air would blow the cobwebs out of your lungs. It also blew the life out of my mother's lungs, for it was after one of those terrible walks, during which she gasped and panted while my father shouted Whitmanesque encouragement, that she called in Sanderstead, our local doctor, who diagnosed t.b. My father was appalled from that moment and spent a small fortune on all kinds of cures, but it was too late—she died within the year, and my father, I have since felt, promptly did something about her in his mind that corresponded to winding up or writing off or some other operation that happens even in the best financial circles."

He suddenly stood up and moved to the open window, staring out as if facing something that challenged him. "Those are the hills where he made her walk. You can see the line of them against the sky." Then he turned abruptly and said he was sure I was tired and would want to go to bed.

I assured him I wasn't sleepy at all.

"But you came in yawning."

"Maybe, but I'm wide-awake now. The breeze is so fresh. . . . You must have hated your father."

He answered slowly: "Yes, I suppose I did. Freud would say so, anyhow. But of course when I was a boy and even up to my undergraduate days people only admitted the politer emotions."

"The war changed all that."

"Yes, indeed, and so many other things too."

He was silent for a moment; then I went on: "You once told me about a certain day, sometime after the war ended, when you found yourself on a park seat in Liverpool."

"When did I tell you that?" He controlled a momentary alarm, then added with a smile: "Ah yes, I remember—in your rooms at St. Scythian's. I'm always garrulous after public speeches. . . . Well, if I told you, you know. That's how it was. And don't ask me about anything before the park seat because I can't answer."

"But how about after the park seat?"

He seemed relieved. "After? Oh, I can stand any amount of cross-examination there—I'm on safe ground from about noon on December 27, 1919."

"I wish you'd begin your story

there, then, and bring it up to date."

"But there is no story—except my life story."

"That's what I'd like to hear."

"How I Made Good? From Park Seat to Parliament?"

"If you like to call it that."

He laughed. "It's mostly a lot of sordid business details and family squabbles. You don't know the family, either."

"All the same, I wish you'd tell me. The effort of setting it all out might even help you towards the other memory—if you're still anxious for it."

I could see the response to that in his eyes as he entered the light again.

"So you really think memory's like an athlete—keep it in training—take it for cross-country runs? H'm, might be something in the idea. When do we start?"

"Now, if you're not too sleepy. I'm not. . . . Go back to that park seat in Liverpool."

"But I told you about that once."

"Tell me again. And then go on."

So he began, and as it makes a fairly long story, it goes better in the third person.

He found himself lying on that park seat. He had opened his eyes to see clouds and drooping trees, and to feel the drops splashing on his face. After a while his position began to seem more and more odd, so he raised himself to a sitting angle, and was immediately aware of sodden clothes, stiff limbs, a terrific headache, and a man stooping over him. His first thought was that he must have been drunk the night before, but he soon rejected it, partly because he could not remember the night before at all, partly because he somehow did not think he was the sort of young man to have had that sort of night, but chiefly because of a growing interest in what the man stooping over him was saying. It was a kind of muttered chorus—"That's right, mister—take it easy. Didn't 'ardly touch yer—it was the wet roadway, you sort o' slipped. Cheer up, mister, no bones broke—you'll be all right—wouldn't leave you 'ere, I wouldn't, if I didn't know you'd be all right. . . ."

Presently, suggested by the muttered chorus and supported by the fact that his clothes were not only soppy wet but also muddled and torn, another hypothesis occurred to him—that he had been run down by a car whose driver had brought him into the park and was now leaving him there.

But where? His brain refused an answer, and when pressed offered a jumble of memories connected only with war—shell-fire for headaches, a smashed leg for stiffness, no man's land for all the mud and rain in the world.

He stood up, feeling dizzy, swayed and almost fell. The man had gone, was now nowhere to be seen. Then he noticed he had been lying down on sheets of newspaper. He stooped to pick one off the seat, hoping it might afford some clue, but the top of the page that would have contained a name and date was an unreadable mush, and the rest was rapidly softening under the heavy rain. He peered at it, nevertheless, searching for some helpful word or phrase before the final disintegration. Most of the letterpress seemed to be news about floods and flood damage—rescues from swollen rivers, people stranded in upper floors, rowboats in streets, and so on.

Then suddenly his eyes caught a paragraph headed "Rainier Still in Germany"—one of those mocking cheerful items that tired subeditors put in to fill an odd corner—something about some holiday crowds taking comfort from the thought that somebody somewhere was faring even worse.

Now it is curious how one's own name, or the name of one's home, or a word like "cancer," will sometimes leap out of a page as if it were printed in red ink. It was like that for the young man as he staggered through the deserted park towards a gate he could see in the distance. Rainier Still in Germany—Rainier Still in Germany. It was a challenge, something he had to answer; and the answer came. "Impossible—I'm here, reading a newspaper, and the newspaper's in English—therefore this can't be Germany."

Green, Leafy Vegetables Source of Many Nutrients

"The green, leafy vegetables are rich sources of many nutrients, and should be included in Victory Gardens," Dr. Warren B. Mack, Executive Secretary of the Advisory Victory Garden Committee of the State Council of Defense, announced today. "The leaves are unique," Dr. Mack stated, "in being the most complete of the vegetable foods, because they are the parts of the plant where all of the plant's foods are synthesized."

"This food factory of the plant—the leaf—has the distinction of containing all of the nutrients needed by the plant as well as the animal kingdom, a role which no other part of the plant plays. Thus we find mustard greens, turnip greens, beet greens, Swiss chard, kale, fresh leaves of cabbage, escarole, endive, green lettuce, parsley, green celery, and many other greens high in the source lists of the minerals and vitamins—nutrients which all of us must have in order to survive, and in considerable quantities in order to be at our best."

The greens need not be monotonous. Many kinds can be grown and they may be prepared in many ways. The following notes and menus were prepared for the Nutrition Sub-Committee of the Victory Garden Advisory Committee by Mrs. Anna DePlanter Bowes, Chief of the Division of Nutrition, Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, Pennsylvania Department of Health:

Eat More Greens

Leafy green vegetables are called "protective foods" because they contribute many minerals and vitamins to the diet. How many of these greens do you eat?

Greens which are usually eaten raw: Chicory, Chinese cabbage, endive, escarole, lettuce, parsley, romaine, watercress.

Greens which may be cooked or eaten raw: Cabbage, celery tops, chives, dandelions, parsley, purslane, scallions with tops, sorrel spinach.

Greens which are usually cooked: Beet and turnip tops, broccoli kohlrabi, Brussels sprouts, collards, dock, kale, lamb's quarter, mustard greens, spinach, Swiss chard.

Use the other green leaves to obtain the best flavor and the most food value.

Use them raw in the form of salads, wilted with bacon or other fats and vinegar.

How to Keep Salad-Greens Fresh: Wash lettuce, or other greens as soon as brought into the house. Drain. Place in a clean, large jar, bowl or pan with a tightly fitting cover. Put at once in the refrigerator or a cold place. Greens prepared in this way remain crisp and fresh for three or more days—just as they do in a hydrator. This is a better way than wrapping in cheese cloth.

Wilted Greens: Put 2 to 3 tablespoons bacon, ham or pork fat into a pan. Add washed, drained greens. Heat, stirring well for 1 minute or less. Add salt and 1 to 2 tablespoons vinegar. Stir well. Serve at once.

In Cooking Greens: Cook only in a small amount of water. Cook only long enough to make tender. Always use the cooking water—with the vegetable, for soups, stews or gravy.

Savory Beet Greens: Select beets with fresh green tops. Handle with care as they bruise easily. It is best to prepare both the tops and the beets as soon as possible after securing from the garden or from the store.

Wash leaves and stalks thoroughly in warm water. Rinse well. If stems are very thin and leaves small, put at once into pan with a flat bottom. Add a small amount of water to that which drips from the leaves. Cook quickly until tender—about 10 to 20 minutes. Drain well. With two knives cut finely. Season with salt, bacon, pork or ham fat and a little vinegar. Reheat before serving.

If stems and leaves are large, cut stems into 1 inch pieces. Cook stems in a small amount of boiling water about 10 minutes. Then add leaves. Cook 10 minutes longer or until tender. Drain well. Cut finely with two knives. Season.

Scallions or Spring Onions: Select small, fresh onions with green tops. Remove roots. Wash well. Cut in 1-inch pieces using all the tops. Cook in boiling salted water, uncovered, until tender—about 5 to 10 minutes. Drain. Save water for soups or stews. Cover onions with milk. When ready to serve, heat. Season with salt and butter.

Curly Kale with Salt Pork: 3 pounds kale
1/2 pound salt pork
1 1/2 tablespoons vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt

Remove stems. Wash leaves well. Cook in a small quantity of boiling water, salted—about 20 minutes or until tender. Drain. Slice salt pork about 1/2 inch or thinner. Cut into cubes. Cook slowly in a frying pan until brown. Drain off 4 tablespoons fat. Add fat, pork cubes, vinegar and salt to kale, mixing well.

Lemon juice may be substituted for vinegar if preferred or available.

Mustard Greens: Have you ever eaten mustard greens? Either the wild mustard growing in fields or the larger shiny leaf of the cultivated plant? Both varieties have exceptionally high nutritional values. They are particularly rich in the minerals, calcium and iron and in vitamins A, B1, C and riboflavin. They also have the added advantage of being low in calories—important to those who watch the scales.

Try them raw as a salad green with your favorite dressing. Wilt them with bacon fat and vinegar for another unexpected flavor treat. Cooked with salt pork, as is so common in the South, or mixed with other greens they add variety to your spring and summer menus.

Try these recipes!

Shredded Mustard Greens Salad

1 cup chopped mustard leaves
use young leaves
1/2 teaspoon minced onion
2 teaspoons lemon juice or vinegar
3 drops salad oil
5 teaspoons sugar
Salt to taste

Mix sugar and salt. Add lemon juice or vinegar. Add the oil and mix thoroughly. Add chopped mustard leaves and onion. Stir until greens are well mixed in the liquid.

Wilted Mustard Greens

Wash greens thoroughly. Drain well. Store in a cool place until ready to use. Put 2 to 3 tablespoons bacon, ham or pork fat into a pan. Add washed, drained greens. Heat, stirring well for 1 minute or less. Add salt, and 1 to 2 tablespoons vinegar. Stir well. Serve at once. Garlic may be substituted for minced onion if desired.

Cooked Mustard Greens

Boil 1/2 pound salt pork sliced thinly in water for 1 hour. Wash mustard greens thoroughly. Drain. Add to boiling water, containing salt pork. Boil until tender—15 to 20 minutes. Drain. Remove salt pork. Chop greens finely with two knives. Season with salt and pepper. Serve hot.

Turnip greens may be mixed with mustard greens and used in this recipe.

Portuguese Greens

2 bunches of mustard greens
1/2 pound bacon
1 cup raw potato diced
1 cup raw turnip diced
Salt and pepper to taste

Wash mustard greens thoroughly. Cut into short lengths. Cut bacon into small pieces. Fry in bottom of iron pot such as a Dutch oven. Add greens, potatoes and turnips. Cook until tender. No water should be added. Season with salt and pepper.

Turnip greens may be used with mustard greens in this recipe.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

MAKE 'EM DO! Another patriotic gesture is that of painting old awnings into new ones. Here's how. Get a can of "Seifast" awning paint at Snellenburg's paint counter in the 3rd fl. Housewares Dept. Not only does this new paint make your old awnings look young and skittish again, but it actually makes them much more durable. It will not stiffen the awning, will this awning paint, nor will it crack. It is sun-resistant, water-resistant, and it retards rot and mildew. Brush or spray the paint on. Seven colors, black, white, $1.40 qt., $5 gallon. Good for any canvas thing.

SUB-DEB FROCKS, SUITS! Snappy, tailored and gay are pique suits and pique frocks for girls ten to sixteen, to be found in Snellenburg's famous 2nd fl. Girls' Dept. Some are waffle piques, some straight ridge piques, but all are as striped as barber poles! Blue-and-white or red-and-white striped suits can be worn with or without blouses, and frocks of white overlaid with broad multi-colored stripes of the harmonizing three primary colors (red, blue, yellow) are grand for any hour of a summer day. Don't buy 'em now, at $3.95. Be canny. Monday and all next week they'll sell for only $3.54. Sweet!

'BLESS ITS HEART! Give it a wastebasket before it ever comes to town. Mother will appreciate the pretty but practical gadget until babe is old enough to coo at the bunnies, rhymes, or whatever painted upon these special baskets, to be had in Snellenburg's Housewares Dept. (3rd fl.). Ever been there? It's an adventure—seeing so many things you never knew about. The pretty painted tin baskets? Well, they're $1.25 and darling! The best of baby-shower gifts.

CAMP COOKIES: It seems that about the most popular gift to soldiers and sailors is still "enough cookies to share, Mom!" Knowing this, Snellenburg's Food Dept. (1st fl.) specializes in the assortment the boys like best—packed in quantity. Those in round tin boxes are immensely popular. For example, the big "Dogwood" tin box is hard to keep in stock. It is crowded with 8 different kinds of delicious little cakes and costs only $1.39 for 3 1/2 lbs. A huge 6-lb. box of ice-box cookies of one kind is priced at only $1.59. Grand buys, both. Sent to any of our own soldiers anywhere at all!

Wedding, shower, and graduation gifts are now in order. For Pete's sake don't shop hurriedly at the last hour. Take your time, find something you really like yourself, keep tabs on me and my column for ideas! Faithfully, FAITH.

SOMETHING NEW! I never heard of 'em—did you?—party paper napkins with an actual etching-like picture of your or a friend's house, your dog, your cat, or your whatever on them. Send a snapshot with order. So far as I know, nobody in town carries them but Snellenburg's. They're simply perfect, take two weeks for finishing, and cost $2.50 for 75, $5 for 250, and $6.50 for 500. They make grand week-end hostess gifts during or after visiting, splendid shower gifts, exciting gifts for any old time, in fact. Or use them yourself! Napkins are white, blue, yellow, orange or green. 1st fl. Stationery.

"1000 EYES." Puzzled? Then just have a look at one of the most effective patterns in glass you've ever seen—all made near home. This heavy glass, full of lights, seems composed of hundreds of quarter to dime sized domed discs of glass in delicate cranberry, orange, lemon, lime and clear. It makes wonderful wedding gifts at those popular wedding gift prices, from $5.95 down to $2.49. A magnificent 18" tortie plate costs $5.95, a pretty bonbon dish $2.49. There are handled fruit baskets, vases, etc. Give something different—Snellenburg's 3rd fl. Glass Dept.

SOLDIERS LIKE THESE! A writing case that looks! It's made especially for soldiers and sailors, but civilians appreciate it, too. I'd like one myself. Not only will the case hold fat packs of envelopes and writing paper (you get some with the case), but it has a generous "desk space" on which to write, and a place for pen or pencil. Covered with khaki cloth, it has bindings and inside pockets of sturdy du Pont fabric that looks exactly like golden calf. This is but one of the items at the splendid new "Service Canteen" on Snellenburg's 1st fl.

GAS AND TIRE SAVING! Then know that at Snellenburg's you can shop by mail and by telephone and not go wrong. Furthermore, this always friendly firm makes phoning easy for out-of-towners by permitting free shopping calls up to 15c. For this special privilege you must call a special number—Enterprise 1-0160 in Penna. and Camden WX-1150 in New Jersey. Personally I shall try to write you only about things you can safely order sight unseen, but at this shop intelligent people do handle all orders. Try them.

to have sold liquors without a license. A Penna. Liquor Control officer, Edward M. Tibbs, testified that he had visited the Johnson home on September 28 and October 12, 1941, when he purchased liquor. Officer Andrew Jackson, colored, also a Liquor Control Board officer, testified that he and Tibbs also visited the place on October 26, 1941. "We bought drinks and paid for them, and remained for about an hour. Other young people were frolicking about in the shed or kitchen," added Jackson. The premises were raided December 7, 1941, and over two quarts of whiskey, 32 bottles of beer and several gallons of wine were seized.

Clifton Ramsey, 51, colored, employed as a laborer at the King Farms, Falls Township, was acquitted of a charge of aggravated assault and battery. The jury placed the costs on the prosecutrix, Mrs. Sarah Craft, negress, who had brought the charges. Mrs. Craft told the court that she had hit Ramsey over the head with her slipper when he "made insulting remarks to me." She claimed that Ramsey picked up a five-foot stick and hit her on the head three times. She stated she remained in a Trenton hospital for treatment for a head injury for four days. Ramsey testified that the woman was drunk at the time. He denied hitting her.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Army's fighter planes are the finest in the world and develop speeds up to 400 miles an hour. They cost approximately $100,000 each, provide fighter escorts for the huge flying fortresses, and combine speed, range, altitude and blistering fire power.

America's plane production plants are working over-time turning out thousands of these fighter planes. War Savings Bonds will help pay for them and the American people are committed to at least ten percent of their income to finance their cost in War Bonds. Every American, buying his share every pay day will make it comparatively easy to supply our army and navy air corps with these supreme Eagles of the air.

ment will be made giving full details as to when and how regular collections will be made in this area. "In the meantime, however, everyone is asked to start saving scrap. The demand is great. If, however, those who are at present saving scrap materials wish to offer these now, they can do so by taking them to any local lumber or coal yard, or feed dealer, all of which places have been asked to accept scrap," said the announcement.

Next week, June 1-6, has been named

Farm Salvage for Victory Week, during which time an intensified drive will be launched to obtain all scrap from farms and other outlying places. According to authoritative figures, it is estimated that an average of 500 pounds of scrap metal is available on every farm in the state. "If we can locate all such valuable material in this area, and get it to the collection points," stated Fromm, "Bucks County can well be proud of its contribution."

The aggregate amount of metal required for machines and ships of war is tremendous, yet scrap materials alone can go far to filling the need. This is proved by the fact that enough metal was salvaged in England last year to build 16,000 tanks.

"All farmers who co-operate in the salvage drive—and it is hoped that all in this locality will join in the effort—will, if they wish, be paid for their scrap. The scrap should be taken to any local lumber or coal yard. If that is impossible, the local defense council or salvage committee should be notified. The metal will be weighed at the collection point and when sold, the owner will be paid if he wishes," states the announcement.

The following instructions have been issued by the local salvage committee, advising the proper way of preparing scrap materials.

Paper: All newspapers should be folded and securely tied, separate from other papers, in bundles approximately 12 inches high.

Magazines should be bundled separately from newspaper and scrap paper in bundles about 12 inches high and securely tied.

Cardboard Cartons, etc. (these are most important), should be flattened out and tied with rope or string.

Wax Paper, Cellophane Wrappers, and other treated papers cannot be used because they will injure the machinery at the paper mills.

Rags: Rags shall be placed in a bag or other suitable container and securely tied.

Rubber: No instruction necessary. Tin Cans: Tin cans shall have both ends and all labels removed, be carefully washed, and flattened out so as to take up the least possible space.

Metals: Remove all wood attached to the metal and if possible break it down into pieces that can be handled by one or two persons.

Six Women Initiated Into
8 'n' 40 Salon of Bucks Co.

Six women took the obligation, and were initiated at the May meeting of Bucks County Salon, No. 74, 8 'n' 40 Societe, held in Bracken Post home last evening.

The new members are: Mrs. Harry Chapin, Mrs. Benjamin Lesseig, Mrs. Joseph Mucklow, members of American Legion Auxiliary of Robert W. Bracken Post, Bristol; and Mrs. James Tracy, Mrs. William Hart and Mrs. John Kalida, members of Jesse W. Soly Post Auxiliary of Langhorne.

Dinner was served at 6:30, with covers placed for 32. The dinner was in honor of the 8 'n' 40 Department president, Mrs. N. Morgan, of Berwick; and the national chaplain, Mrs. Jackson, Philadelphia.

Red roses and red candles were used as decorations. Mrs. William DeVoe, president, introduced the two guests of honor, who spoke briefly.

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O Lord our God, who art the Life of all, the help of those who flee to thee, the Hope of those that cry unto thee, we give thee thanks this day for the city of refuge which Thou art to all who would seek thee. As we come into thy presence we find ourselves exempt from the exactions of the flesh; we find ourselves preserved in the midst of destruction; we find ourselves strengthened in the midst of weakness. Direct us into Thy Presence, that there we may see the bright star of hope in the darkened sky of despair which is above the world today. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The funniest comedy of the year had its first local showing last night at the Grand Theatre, when the audience took a screen trip with a quarter of newlyweds, in "Niagara Falls." With Zasu Pitts and Slim Summerville as one set of newlyweds, and lovely Marjorie Woodworth and Tom Brown as the other, old and young love were exposed to the tune of riotous fun and gales of laughter.

The bumbling Summerville, and flutery Miss Pitts play a pair of newlyweds who were finally hitched after a courtship of 20 years. Slim is so happy in his wedding state that he feels it is his duty to marry off Tom Brown and Miss Woodworth.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Chester Morris, currently featured with Harriet Hilliard at the Bristol Theatre in "Confessions of Boston Blackie," enjoys hair-raising murder mysteries and "good, stiff" boxing bouts, as a hobby.

RITZ THEATRE

The screen debut of 22 Chinese children took place in the picture, "A Yank on the Burma Road," now showing at the Ritz Theatre. The Chinese Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles has a juvenile choir, aged from 10 to 16 years. They and their sponsors were entirely willing to accept the screen offer, eager to contribute their pay to the Chinese Relief fund.

The often-voiced demand for "something new" on the screen is aptly answered in "Jail House Blues," which opened yesterday at the Ritz Theatre.

ST. ANN'S BOWS TO EDGELY IX; SEVEN MEN LEFT ON BASES

Edgely Defeats Visitors By the Score of 5 to 3

ASHBY GIVES NINE HITS

"Saints" Lacked the Punch in the Vital Spots of Game

St. Ann's A. A. had seven players left on base last night as it bowed to the league-leading Edgely nine, 5-3, in a Suburban League tilt played on the Edgely field.

The "Saints" got to Ashby for nine hits and with the exception of the last two innings had runners on base on every frame. But that vital punch in the pinch was missing and only in the third were the Wood Streeters able to push runs across the plate.

The triumph enabled the DeKoyermen to maintain their one game and a half edge on first place in the circuit.

Steve Pappatero did the bill work for the losers and gave the Edgelyites five hits during his tenure on the mound. "Bill" Salerno pitched the last inning after Pappatero was removed for a pinch-hitter in the sixth. In the last frame, Edgely socked Salerno for a single and double and a run.

TAN ART MAKES DEBUT INTO SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Tan-Art, the new entry in the Bristol Softball League, made its home appearance last night on Leedom's field and nosed out the Wilson Distillery ten, 3-2, in a tilt in which an extra inning was necessary to decide the contest.

A single by Stuart, a stolen base, and a hit by Steve Masne gave the leather-workers the victory. The Beaver street boys also outbit the Wilson boys, 7-5.

Masne did the pitching for the winning aggregation while Lupkin and Bigge shared the bill work for the Wilson team. Masne held the distillery-men scoreless after the first inning.

MAY REARRANGE SEATS FOR ST. ANN'S BOUTS

Promoter Clem Cipparone, who is in charge of the professional bouts which will be staged in the St. Ann's A. A. outdoor arena, announced today that if conditions warrant he will re-arrange the seating capacity of the local fight palace so that everyone would be seated comfortably. The local arena can be made to seat 2,000 fans.

No material will be needed to re-arrange the seats and the labor will be supplied by members of the St. Ann's organization.

Cipparone's first show is booked for Monday night when Tony Maglione, Trenton youth and former St. Ann's A. A. amateur boxer, meets Henry Blackwell, San Francisco.

Also booked in the bouts are three boys well known in this section: Joe Dugan, Gus Waldron, and Clem Kinsey. Dugan, the Otter street mittman, is pitted against Sammy Correll, Salem, N. J., light-heavyweight.

KEEGAN PITCHES THIRD ONE-HIT GAME OF THE SEASON; DIAMOND DEFEATS TEXACO BY SCORE OF 6 TO 1

"Danny" Keegan, star moundsman for the Diamond team, pitched his third one-hit game of the season last night on St. Ann's field as the Diamond boys hammered the Voltz-Texaco team into a 6-1 defeat.

Keegan in his previous starts had beaten both Badenhausen and Edgely with one-hit pitching and in the three games the opposing team has yet to score an earned run against the 19-year-old Burlington boy.

In last night's tilt, "Bill" Dougherty, lead-off batter for the Voltz team, led off with a fly to center which Barroth played safe. The ball dropped for a hit and that was all the gascoilers could collect off Keegan, although walks and errors gave four other players life on base.

The winners amassed their quintet of markers off "Bill" Gallagher in the second inning and at that Gallagher deserved a better fate. He retired the first two batters and then Dougherty messed up the works by erring on Miksis' grounder. Before the inning was over, Barroth had walked, a fielder's choice was too late to retire a runner at the plate, Keegan, Ritter, and Jefferies got hits for five runs.

Keegan had five strikeouts to his credit while Gallagher had eight. Eddie Jefferies with two out of three led the Diamond team with the stick.

R. A. F. Slows Down Rommel's Drive

Cairo—Ripping from the skies into Axis planes and mechanized ground forces, the Royal Air Force has destroyed nine enemy aircraft and large numbers of transport vehicles, slowing up if not halting Field Marshal Edwin Rommel's new drive toward the Egyptian frontier, it was learned today.

An official communique disclosing the increasingly active part being taken by the R. A. F. in repelling the Axis offensive against British positions in the Bir Hacheim sector, said:

"Throughout yesterday our fighters and bombers went into action against mechanized forces in the Bir Hacheim and El Adem areas.

"Nine enemy aircraft were shot down and others damaged. Large numbers of transport vehicles were destroyed.

"Last night the enemy airdrome at Tmimi was heavily bombed.

"Enemy aircraft carried out a series of night operations against our forward positions. Four of our aircraft are missing."

British positions at Bir Hacheim remained intact in the face of Axis onslaughts.

Italians Claim Fierce Attacks On British Troops

Rome—By official Italian wireless—Fierce Axis air attacks on British troops and truck concentrations in Libya were claimed by the Italian high command today.

The enemy sustained "heavy losses," it was said, with the airfield and railway establishments at Tobruk bombed. Thirteen British planes were brought down in air fights, it was asserted.

New bombing attacks on Malta and torpedoing of an "armed steamer" of 2,000 tons in the Eastern Mediterranean also were claimed.

Improvement Seen in United Nations Forces in Australia

Melbourne—United Nations land forces in Australia are "the largest we have ever had" but there is no justification for complacency, Army Minister Frances Forde said today.

"There has been a big improvement in the last few months," he said. "This improvement should have the effect of encouraging people to make even greater sacrifices for the sake of Australia."
